

Opening Phoenix Branch Of Wakefield Music Co.

Third of a Series Which the Company is Establishing in the More Important Towns—Complete Stock of Musical Instruments

Today occurs the long waited opening of the Wakefield Music Co., whose newly appointed store at 132 North First avenue, has been ready for some time for their stock of pianos and players which just arrived last night.

This institution, with its chain of branch stores, now being established throughout the state, will undoubtedly soon become one of the best known business houses in Arizona. Wm. Wakefield, the leading organizer of this new company, says that branch stores have already been opened at Flagstaff and Tucson, and that five or six more will be announced shortly, and that his company will handle an average of three carloads of pianos and player-pianos monthly. Associated with Mr. Wakefield in the management of the new house is G. H. Long who has had considerable experience in the piano business. Mr. Wakefield of course, being a veteran of about fifteen years experience in musical lines. The firm has announced a strict, absolute "one-price" policy as their fixed system, and on the basis of selling well-known guaranteed goods only expects to fight for and secure a good share of the musical business of the state.

They are starting out with eight lines of pianos and will always stock from 18 to 20 styles and sizes with two very well-known makes as leaders, making a feature of the Virtuoso player-piano. A complete stock of small musical instruments and supplies will also be carried, and a most up-to-date line of sheet music, including both popular and classical music. This department will be in charge of Miss Ruth Griffin.

As this is their formal opening, the general public is invited to call today, particularly between three and five in the afternoon from seven to nine in the evening, between which hours a musical program will be rendered and refreshments served.

INSTRUCTORS' SUMMER WORK

University of Arizona Instructors Plan Special Work for Summer—Department of Household Economics Next Fall

TUCSON, May 29.—Mrs. Martha Stanley, teacher for nine years in the University of Arizona, is leaving for Columbia, N. Y., to be absent a year, that she may complete and publish a book on social ethics, now almost ready for the press. Before completing it she desires to do some original work on it in New York. She will be missed by her students who admire her intellect, and her ability to create interest in her subjects.

Marion Perry, head of the English department, will spend her summer in La Jolla, California, for ten years she taught in English in Wellesley, and one year in the great Berkeley. This is the end of her first year in Arizona. Her students like her methods, a compliment to be envied, when a teacher is concerned.

John Carter has been elected to the editorship of the University paper, with John G. Hayhurst as business manager, which insures the success of University Life.

Because of the kind of work, and the amount to be done, and because the University is no place for disciplining boys and girls, the students have gotten the president's consent to organize a student body next year. Two members from each class have been appointed to study up on the subject, for it is the manner of discipline in all the leading colleges of the country. This nothing more than pride in behaving.

A department of household economics is being established for the fall term in the university, over which is to be placed one of the best instructors in the land. Economics have always had a strong place in boys' work, now it is being realized that it plays a strong part in the lives of both boys and girls. If it were possible to make the study of chemistry more attractive, the addition of economics for the home would do it, for the backbone of it is chemistry, which is more and more looked upon as a culture study. Prof. Gould, head of chemistry in the university, says it insists upon a student being accurate, exact, honest, cleanly and being a clear logical thinker, all of which are real elements in culture. Today where hundreds of chemists are employed in railroads, manufacturing, and other lines of every-day living, there was but one year ago. Chemistry is the backbone of mining and agriculture, as it is of the kitchen on which all depend for food.

Prof. Otis of the language work assures inquirers that the modern languages are more and more desired by the men and women who attend the university. That more and more are they feeling the need of a practical use of them, and now German, French and Spanish are available for all. The university graduate who understands Spanish, should find ample work in the schools of this state. In the past the mining and agriculture of the university have received more attention, because they were naturally first, owing to the conditions of the state. Many will be surprised to know that few states have a better faculty, if any for every department that makes for the best Arizona wants. In the botanical department Grace Wadell of Tucson was found busily finishing a herbarium of fifty native plants, on which she will receive credits for her year's work. The flowers, with bloom and root, had been pressed most carefully and fitted to a card, to which they were held by strips of paper. The work of an artist, Arizona's plants are rare—and called classical by other states.

GOVERNORS AND COUNCIL MEET

Sessions Separate in Morning and Joint in the Afternoon—Will Hear Reports of the Washington Trips

When the board of governors of the water users association meets in its regular monthly session, the first Monday in June, the council will also convene, apart in the morning and in conjunction, the afternoon. This meeting is called for the express purpose of hearing the report of the emissaries to Washington, who conferred with and testified before Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane. The council, it will be remembered despatched Captain George Christy after the board had deputed President Orme, so that each body had its representative to hear. In addition, the council is preparing to follow out its declared policy of taking a larger part in the affairs of the association, meeting regularly, possibly once a month, instead of once a year and on certain special occasions. The legislative power of the association is vested in the council, and the board is merely an administrative body. As such it meets regularly on the first Monday in each month, transacts routine business connected with the bills, orders and such minor matters, and expresses in its various acts the policy of the water users association in reference to the questions of project wide importance that may arise. But the council convenes regularly but once a year, in May, when the annual meeting of the board is held. At this time the officers for the coming year are elected and needed laws passed. But this is as far as the usefulness of the council goes. If the members want to know anything about what is being done in the association, they must find it out from the press or by inquiry among those who are on the inside. Consequently at the meeting from which Christy left for Washington, Chairman D. P. Jones announced that the council would hereafter take a larger interest in the affairs of the association, and Monday's special meeting is one of the first manifestations of that interest.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS AT COUNTRY CLUB

Polls Open From Four Until Ten at Night.

Election of officers will attract many to the Country club today, as polls will be open from four until ten o'clock and will not interfere with the usual Saturday tea and auction which are always pleasant features. The unusually cool spring days have found many on the links and the tennis courts are in use continually. With the election as additional interest this afternoon it is safe to predict a record breaking crowd.

Eleven directors are to be chosen and from this number will be elected a president. He will appoint his committees within a few days. While all the various committees are of importance, the keenest interest is felt in the announcement of those who will serve on the house committee for it is understood there will be few changes next year as the club has been most successful this season. Several smart events have been given notable among them were the cafe chantant and bal masqué. The outdoor sports have been splendid and the club has gained an enviable reputation in tennis and golf throughout the state.
